Legislative Advocacy Update

The Alaska Legislature recently completed another grueling session, working on several budgets and bills affecting changes for persons with disabilities and seniors. The SAIL Independent Living (IL) team advocated for a better future for our people. Executive Director Joan O'Keefe and IL Specialists Kevin Gadsey and Pamela Mueller-Guy testified before committees on behalf of budgets and bills. Gadsey and IL Specialist Kara Lunde of Ketchikan were heard on Southeast radio discussing House Bill 357.

Representative Peggy Wilson (R-Wrangell) sponsored H.B. 357 to change the old language written into the laws regarding disabilities, such as 'handicapped' and 'infirm,' to person-first language such as 'individuals with disabilities.' The bill leapt through the House committees, but slowed to a crawl in the Senate, barely passing in the final days of the session. The changes may seem minor, but 19 western states have already implemented similar legislation. "To some persons with disabilities, 'handicap' is an annoyance, but to others, it is a slur equivalent to words we won't repeat here," Gadsey told Representatives and Senators during session testimony. Gale Sinnott, Director of Vocational Rehabilitation, was instrumental in pushing this bill through.

Along with another Alaska IL Center, SAIL was dealt a financial blow this spring when the federal government pulled the plug on the highly successful Youth In Transition program, aimed at helping youth reach employment or education goals. In addition, Interpreter Referral Line (IRL) funding has not increased in more than a decade while interpreter requests have skyrocketed. O'Keefe, Gadsey, Mueller-Guy, and an army of consumers and IL Center staff from across Alaska testified to the success and necessity of these programs. The Legislature included $100,000 as partial funding for these programs statewide, and $40,000 toward SAIL's IRL program, thanks in part to the leadership of Rep. Bruce Weyrauch (R-Juneau) and his support of independent living.

As reported in the last SAIL newsletter, H.B. 303 seemed to create limitations and more rules for persons on the Adult Companion Medicaid waiver in the name of improving the program. H.B 287 lessens the requirement for new nursing homes and hospitals to get a "Certificate of Need" before building in large boroughs. Both bills stalled in the Health, Education, and Social Services Committee and never garnered support in the Senate. Thanks to independent living advocates, the sponsor of 287 submitted an addendum to the bill that required nursing homes to still prove a need.

Bills to create an Elder Fraud Assistance program and provide dental services via Medicaid passed the Legislature this year as well. Thanks in part to more advocacy by Mueller-Guy, the bill requiring all newborns to be tested for hearing loss passed through the Legislature effective on January 1, 2008.

Overall, this was a great session for persons experiencing disabilities, but next year, we can and should do so much more. Talk to your representatives and senators while they are in their home offices. Let them know your concerns and that people with disabilities vote, making up ten to twenty percent of the population.

Juneau Remodel

IL Specialist Kevin Gadsey tries out the new Assistive Technology room. The SAIL Juneau office just experienced a remodel to create the AT room and office space. AK Mental Health Trust Authority provided funding for the remodel via a small projects grant!

SAIL Sitka Joins Advocacy Groups

The SAIL Sitka team was appointed to the Advancing Our Community Steering Committee and the Commission on Health and Human Services.

AOC is a group of community members committed to Sitka's well-being. Many members of AOC come from organizations that work directly with youth, families, and individuals. AOC is organized around the principle of collaboration.

The Commission on Health and Human Services serves the City and Borough of Sitka by advising the assembly on matters ranging from healthy lifestyles, activities and funding, to ensuring the availability of necessary human services in the community.

Sitka ORCA On The Move

If you live in Sitka, you may have spotted the new ORCA bus traveling the roads. After completing training on how to use the wheelchair lift we are now able to go near and far, and up and down with the help of the lift.

The bus and passengers have traveled to the ends of Sitka for adventures in sand, shells, campfire, and candle making. We have crossed the trails of Totem Park in the WISEWOMAN triathlon. We have baked and delivered treats to the animals staying at the shelter. The group has climbed high on the wall at Sheldon Jackson College conquering all that stands in their way. ORCA will not stop there with big plans for this summer.

Riding bikes and cruising down towards Herring Cove, hop a ferry to Juneau for Celebration, put on dancing shoes with the Russian Dancers, take a break and have a picnic in the sunshine, catch a floatplane to Lake Eva for some relaxation, and head to Fish Camp for a little subsistence Alaskan Native experience. That's just a sample of what ORCA will be doing this summer. We will still meet regularly for activities, and definitely have lots of fun!

Sitka Students Learning About Abilities Rather Than Disabilities

Is it dangerous for people who are deaf to operate heavy machinery? What if someone is working on heavy machinery and somebody else needed her to stop? If the machine's warning system starts beeping, then she would not be able to hear the warning.

The SAIL presentation team has heard these responses to this question. But Sitka students may give you another opinion.

More than 350 students have attended a Disability Etiquette and Awareness Presentation in Sitka, among 2,000 students across Southeast Alaska, sharing a different answer to this question. People working with heavy machinery, wear ear protection. When wearing ear protection, hearing ability is lessened. This presentation covered more than just this question however. Students of all ages learned that people should be treated as people. Along with knowing that someone with a disability can still accomplish anything such as composing music, to becoming President of the United States. Sitka students now better understand what proper etiquette is and are using it in their daily lives.

A New Face in Sitka

Hi, I'm Stefanie Mach, a new staff member at the Sitka SAIL office. I will be here for the summer assisting with fundraising and special projects. I am excited to be a part of SAIL and to be in Sitka.

I graduated from the University of Wisconsin - Stevens Point with a degree in International Studies and Spanish. I traveled with the Charleston, S.C., AmeriCorps tutoring, trail building, building houses, maintaining a wildlife center, and disaster relief. Then I worked in a woman's health facility, interned at a U.S. senator's office, traveled around the US and abroad. My most recent project was cleaning up some of the most devastated parts of New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina.

I hope that I can learn from SAIL, its consumers, and the people of Sitka. I want to use my travel, academic, and professional experience to help improve this community. I invite everyone to stop in to say hello.

A New Face in Ketchikan

Hi, I'm Tonya Curtis and I am excited to be here in Ketchikan as an Independent Living Specialist. I am happy to have the opportunity to serve in Southeast in the outreach to communities nearby as well as to Alaskans who may want help with vision, hearing, and mobility needs. Living in Alaska for almost 15 years in a village up north and outside of Petersburg on Kupreanof Island for the past 10 years has prepared me for most obstacles and helped me understand how some people may feel at times. I have worked both in private settings and state and federal positions as a clerk. I've been an assistant to offices and an educator. My two daughters and son are growing faster than fireweeds and forget-me-nots! My favorite pastimes include spending time with family and friends, traveling to new places, and learning new things. I look forward to working with you and know that the SAIL spirit is contagious. Don't hesitate to contact me.

JUNU OBA GROUP

On May 19, Bartlett Hospital Occupational Therapist, Jo Boehme, was guest presenter to the OBA support group. She did a fantastic job of explaining the value of having a vision evaluation and home safety check. Jo talked about eye diseases and their relationship to other health concerns, such as diabetes. We plan to invite other community speakers to meet us to share their programs and services for seniors.

If you know of anyone who is having problems with low vision, please invite them to our group. Juneau's support group meets on the third Friday of the month at the Juneau Senior Center. Contact Sitka and Ketchikan SAIL offices for more information about their local support groups. Lastly, with gratitude, I thank local and outlining community members for their support in helping re-form OBA's advisory committee. I am here to help and offer you SAIL services. Feel free to call me at my new direct line, 907-523-0678.
